For nearly 150 years, the BIEF has been promoting the works of French publishers on an international stage. Its mission: to foster and develop exchanges between French and foreign publishing industry professionals.

This catalogue presents more than 40 publishing houses, each through a selection of 5 works affording an overview of their recent releases and editorial line. It is intended for foreign publishers interested in reaching out to their French counterparts, for booksellers and librarians, and for lovers of children's books.

A digital version is available on our website:

Discover Nasreddine, an iconic character of Muslim folklore, in a playful tale steeped in the vibrant colors of the Middle East!

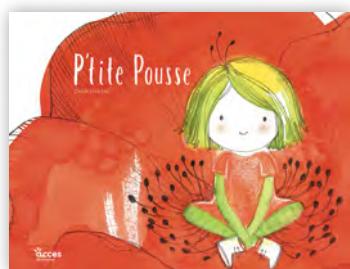

Mustapha is drowning in despair: his ears stick out and his nose is flat. He thinks he's ugly and fears the crowd's mockery. But his father, Nasreddine, sees things differently. With a twinkle in his eye and a story up his sleeve, he turns his son's misery into a lesson. Through hilarious, absurd mishaps, this clever philosopher reveals a timeless truth: freedom begins when we stop fearing judgment. A book for anyone who's felt out of place, and a reminder that confidence is our finest accessory.

Bloombelina

P'tite Pousse

Cécile HUDRISIER

An ode to freedom that will make you want to spread your wings and set off on an adventure!

Born in a poppy, Bloombelina may be tiny, but she has a giant's determination. Longing to explore the big wide world, she sets off on an adventure. As seasons turn, Toad, Fish, Squirrel, and Mole try to hold her back, but her desire for freedom prevails. Through rich prose and delicate illustrations, Cécile Hudrisier guides readers through the tall grasses in this modern take on Andersen's Thumbelina, gently reminding us of a timeless truth: we must let loved ones spread their wings and fly.

A poetic and delicate album that introduces children to the wind, the invisible force that moves the world.

Who am I?

I am born in the beating of a butterfly's wings. I make leaves rustle, windmills turn, kites fly, and sails billow as ships return to port.

Who am I? I am the wind!

A minimalist and contemplative album, with gentle and elegant illustrations, inviting us to discover the wind – that invisible breath that sets the world in motion, shapes journeys, and whispers into the ears of nature and humankind.

ACTES SUD jeunesse

The Actes Sud Jeunesse catalogue is the fruit of a concerted effort to maintain a diverse selection of titles so as to ensure a collection that includes picture books, activity books, novels, and non-fiction. For 30 years, we have been committed to publishing high-quality content, with strong voices, to the highest production standards. Striving for excellence, we like to discover, share, and break down the borders between genres. ## The Adelphides

Les Adelphides

Alice Dozier

All the ingredients for a heroic fantasy in one book: a curse, the dangerous quest for an elixir, united siblings, and dark forces barring their way.

Riméane, Saïcha, and Myosotis Brimbelle, the millers' children, are competing in the Adelphides for the first time. This annual tradition allows siblings to strengthen their bond and serve the community. But the noble contestants look down on these newcomers from the countryside. That is, until they are chosen for the Sacred Service, the most vital and perilous mission of all. And when a rebellious princess seeks to upend the Adelphides, the fate of the Brimbelle siblings is changed forever.

This beautiful story of loss, encounters, friendship, and new beginnings reminds us that time gently softens sadness.

Geoffrey is a little featherwick who lives a happy life in the crest of an eagle, surrounded by his kin. But one day, a storm blows him from his nest and throws him to the foot of a bramble bush, miles away from home! Alone and distraught, he sheds a huge wet tear that crashes to the ground. Then, from the very spot where the tear lands, springs up a strange creature of fear and sadness that wraps itself tightly around the poor little featherwick. Who will help him get rid of it?

The Animals' Parade Series

Mon livre-farandole

Léo RIGHINI-FLEUR

A sturdy and carefully-crafted series, with cut-outs and cardboard sleeves for storage and protection.

Each title showcases 10 animals in their natural habitats, arranged cleverly from smallest to largest to add a playful touch to the book. The fold-out leporello format allows for two stories – one on the front and one on the back – that highlight key moments in a toddler's day, such as bath time, meals, waking up, and bedtime. Bright colors are used throughout to entertain babies and help stimulate their vision.

A fantastic adventure in the time of the Pharaohs.

Egypt, 15th century BC: young Merit and her little brother Ouati risk everything to free the daughter of a cursed god, imprisoned in a secret chamber deep within the temple of Amun. Their journey down the Nile – filled with surprising encounters and stops in unusual places – takes them all the way to the royal palace of Avaris, in the North of the country, guided by a single clue: a mysterious hieroglyph of a bull.

CHAPITRE 1

— C'était le roi !
— Reste bien derrière moi ! dit Ouser sans prendre la peine de se retourner.

Arrivé au bout d'une enfilade de pièces identiques, il s'engage dans une galerie aux murs décorés. En regardant Ouati marcher derrière son père, on pourrait croire voir la même personne à deux âges différents. Vêtus de la même tunique blanche et chaussant les mêmes sandales, seule leur coiffure marque une différence. Le fils porte celle des jeunes garçons, rasé avec une natte à l'arrière du crâne, tandis que la chevelure de son père ressemble à un casque enfoui sur sa tête.

Ouati réalise qu'il a lâché à voix haute ce qu'il pensait chuchoter pour lui-même. Mais ce qu'il a vu était si inattendu ! Alors que son père avançait sans hésitation dans le dédale de couloirs du palais royal où il a ses habitudes, Ouati a aperçu deux soldats, tout au bout d'un très long corridor. Impressionnés, leurs armes à la main, chacun de leurs pas claquait sur le sol.

Ils n'étaient pas seul, un homme marchait derrière eux. Il est passé très vite, à peine une apparition. Mais un détail s'est imprimé dans l'œil du jeune garçon.

A feminist novel about the true story of the thousands of young Irish girls locked away in the Magdalene convents to atone for their supposed sins.

"They claimed it was the only way to drive out the Devil that had taken hold of us."

This is the story of Deirdre, of Sinead, of the thousands of young Irish women locked away behind convent walls. It is the story of women condemned simply for having had the misfortune of being preyed upon by men. It is the story of a young man who listens and comes to realize that he carries the same violence within himself. It is the story of light amidst suffering.

Castille is no ordinary princess. Castle balls, charming princes, and armies of seamstresses: that's her worst nightmare!

Castille is no ordinary princess. Pink annoys her, and unicorns and kittens don't impress her one bit. What she loves is looking after Farmer Mathurin's pigs, dirtying her dress, and splattering her pretty boots with muck. Stories with lace, a few little farts... and a good dose of freedom! With her strong-willed personality, Castille proves that a princess can eat with her fingers, smell bad, and still be a true princess with a big heart!

A quirky, offbeat funeral story that explores legacy and what we leave behind.

It's Eugène's funeral. He was 92. His great-grandson refuses to wear a black suit: he'll wear a dress as vibrant as Papigène's garden. The child causes a bit of chaos during the ceremony. Are they really going to bury him among those cold stones? The little rebel is scolded by two of Eugène's old comrades-in-arms: he was a war hero, after all! But in the end, the boy's heartfelt tribute to his beloved Papigène's gardening talents wins everyone over... With illustrations in fine ink and watercolor.

Lancelot is a little monster who falls to Earth one fine morning. But during his fall, he loses his smile. So he begins to steal other people's smiles, spreading sadness all around. Everything changes, however, when he meets a young villager named Castille... The illustrations in this picture book are created entirely with pastels and colored pencils.

Didier Jeunesse's love of music shows in every word and every picture in our books. Our goal: to introduce children to the pleasures of sharing books, whether by reading them out loud, laughing at wacky rhymes, singing famous jazz songs, or simply listening to a captivating story. Our books have inspired the imaginations of entire generations since 1988. Our catalogue now features more than 900 titles, including board books, picture books, interactive sound books, musical books, and young adult fiction. ## Discover Jazz Lullabies

Je découvre les berceuses jazz

Stéphanie DESBENOIT

Gentle and soothing jazz lullabies for sharing tender moments with little ones.

This sound book features 5 buttons (90 seconds total) with 5 beautiful jazz lullabies, performed in their original English versions by the most legendary voices of the genre: "Lullaby in Blue" by Debbie Reynolds, "My Sleepy Head" by Nat King Cole, "Hit the Road to Dreamland" by Mel Tormé, "Lullaby of the Leaves" by Connie Boswell, and "Hush-a-bye" by Bing Crosby. Stéphanie Desbenoit reimagines the lullabies in natural settings, each with a distinctive atmosphere for a lulling bedtime experience.

A gripping dystopia, somewhere between The Handmaid's Tale and The Last of Us.

Jo is on the run. Thirty years after the declaration of the demographic state of emergency that plunged the world into chaos, girls over 15 must submit to the Duty of Procreation or be sent to the Birth Institutes – from which no one has ever returned. Hunted by the authorities, Jo dreams of reaching the still-free Scandinavian Union. But her plan goes awry: to cross the border, she must join forces with Edgar, a man who has lived in isolation and knows nothing of the regime's reign of terror.

The Big Person's Moustache

La moustache de grand

Alexandre JUZA

A little boy is tired of following the rules and thinks he can escape them... by growing up! But what makes a grown-up?

When you're little, you have to follow the rules. For example, you're not allowed to eat madeleines in the bath, or eat the whole packet at once. Our hero is tired of following rules that prevent him from enjoying life (and madeleines), so he decides to grow up. And what's the difference between kids and grown-ups? Body hair, of course! If he had body hair... everything would be easier. A tender and humorous picture book about the quest for freedom!

Freddy Mut Publishing specializes in comics and children's books. Its only editorial line is humor. Its flagship collection for toddlers (ages 0-6) is the Little Bro series, which realistically and humorously describes the world of toddlers. Family plays an important role in this context, particularly at family events. Younger readers (ages 0-3) will be more interested in the first three albums, while the other titles will be of more interest to slightly older children.

Little Bro and all his classmates are going to the zoo to see real animals. You know, those funny creatures that look just like stuffed toys?

A fieldtrip to the zoo! How exciting! Little Bro and his classmates are going to see real animals. You know, those funny creatures that look just like stuffed toys? They'll discover that pink flamingos sleep on one leg (probably so they can itch their nose with the other one) and that giraffes have blue tongues (maybe because they ate too many blue candies). But all of that remains to be seen!

La visite du zoo se termine par le traditionnel passage à la boutique souvenirs. P'tit frère achète une girafe en peluche qu'il appelle tout de suite Sophie... Allez donc savoir pourquoi !

Grandma and Grandpa are inviting Little Bro to come with them on their next cruise. Little Bro wants to know if he can bring along his pirate costume...

For his last birthday, Grandma and Grandpa gave Little Bro a pair of pajamas. Lame! To make up for it, they offered to take him along with them on their next cruise. So Little Bro asked if he could wear his pirate costume... Grandma replied that he wouldn't need it. On the big day, the cruise starts out calmly enough, but Little Bro has prepared a surprise that nobody will be forgetting anytime soon...

GALLIMARD JEUNESSE

The first illustrated books by Gallimard Jeunesse were published in 1972, marking the beginning of a long-term collaboration with the greatest illustrators of those years. The first paperbacks appeared in 1977, just as Gallimard's encyclopedia and non-fiction series came to define the company in the 1980s. Since over 50 years, Gallimard Jeunesse has cornered the market of French children's books, thanks to its rich backlist, the talent of its new writers and illustrators, its innovative graphic and editorial teams, and the development of international co-editions.

A powerful and bewitching family tragedy, a hymn to sisterhood.

It's summertime. Everything is either stifling or burning. In an isolated mill on the edge of a forest, a mother dies suddenly after a violent argument, leaving her three daughters orphaned and terrified: Alecto, the broken one, two months from turning 18; Penelope, the level-headed one; and her twin Ariane, the favorite. To stay together, they decide to hide their mother's death until Alecto turns 18. But the town's mayor is prowling around the house, as are the ghosts of an obscure past...

What if Little Red Riding Hood held auditions to choose the perfect Big Bad Wolf for her story?

Little Red Riding Hood is searching for the wolf for her story. But the candidates are never quite right. Always a bit too much of this, not enough of that... So what exactly are the criteria for the "right big bad wolf"? He has to be very tall, of course. Very strong and frightening too. All black, to make readers shiver. So Grandmother points Little Red Riding Hood toward a strange, shadowy forest, where she might find the wolf for her tale. Perhaps a wolf who dreams... of friends and adventures!

It's not easy being Santa Claus, but luckily he has the best assistant in the world!

The preparations for Christmas night go on all year long: sports training, reading thousands of letters, managing the stables, creating new toys, choosing outfits for the dolls... Being Santa is hard work! Do you really think he does all that on his own? My name is Alexandrine, and I'm Santa Claus's personal assistant. Let me tell you how it all began.

En arrivant chez lui, il m'a entraînée aux déviers. Première mission: nettoyer les bous des rennes. J'ai passé un moment à étaler la paille fraîche, changer l'eau des abreuvoirs et préparer leur foin. Pifou, c'était épaisse!

« Et il faudra le refaire demain matin, mon petit caillou! » a soufflé le vieux bonhomme.

Qui pensait que, le reste de l'année, les rennes étaient au péril à brouiller tranquillement.

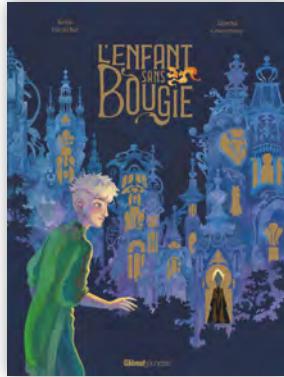

« Les descentes en piqué vers les maisons, les remontées en urgence pour éviter les avions, espier les cheminées et atterrir sur un toit en pente, ce se travaille! Entrainez mes bêtes tous les jours, tu sais. Sans compter le poids du traîneau rempli de cadeaux qu'il faut tirer. »

A cheeky and light-hearted trip around the world to learn all about good manners!

Do you call strangers by their first name? Do you blow your nose in public? Good manners take time to learn and they're often terribly boring... unless you talk about them in a deliciously fun book!

In this guide to etiquette, each question is explored in three steps: a quick trip around the world on the chosen topic; a funny spotlight on another country; and testimonials from children all over the globe. Because politeness doesn't look the same everywhere...

A dive into the plant world.

See & Know is a non-fiction book that introduces older children to botany. The concept is simple yet ingenious: first, you observe the image (the "seeing"), then you unfold two large flaps to access the "knowing." The book is comprised of 7 beautifully illustrated and animated chapters (flowers, fruits, cones, seeds, seedlings and buds, leaves, and trees). Fanny Pageaud's delicate artwork immerses readers in the beauty of the plant world. A real gem – rich both visually and scientifically.

Items and materials.

Are objects merely useful, inert, concrete things? Pascale Estellon has organized them by material: objects made of wood, metal, plastic, glass, ceramics, plant fibers, and paper... ranging from everyday items like cleaning gloves to pieces created by artists, such as an Alvar Aalto vase. Painted in gouache, this picture book unfolds across large flaps. At the end, readers will find a short history of each material.

The first 36 months.

36 Months is a journal that tells the story of a baby's life, month after month, from birth (and even just before) to age three. As the pages turn, we watch this little one grow and change, and see their world gradually expand. This book invites shared reading – a space for conversations between generations, siblings, parents, and grandparents – and celebrates the simplicity and intensity of those first years, and their deep connection to nature and to the world.

George loves to observe things that repeat. He's not comfortable around people, but he adores collecting objects! Step into his unusual life and discover his passions – each with a sillier name than the last. There's just one problem: he's great at collecting, but not at putting away... Can you help him find his favorite hat? George reflects the author's own neurodivergence and the paradoxes between both conditions. This playful book introduces young readers to these topics with humor and empathy.

A book about breasts for children and older readers? Why not? This inclusive book invites us into a joyful world that reveals the beauty of many different chests – each one sheltering a beating heart. From childhood to old age, this poetic work presents, on each double-page spread, a chest paired with a word. With gentleness, tenderness, and a touch of romanticism, it encourages us to (re)embrace our differences and (re)learn to accept, love, and listen to our bodies and what makes them unique.

A large, beautiful picture book that explores the fear of the dark through playful oppositions, helping readers make peace with the darkness.

You can be afraid of the dark, yet love the night. Fear the shadows, yet marvel at the stars. Shiver at the thought of a damp, gloomy cave, yet delight in nestling inside the cozy “cave” of a soft, fluffy blanket... Alice de Nussy's poetic, chiaroscuro text is magnificently illustrated by Stéphane Kiehl. Together, they explore the many shades of darkness, revealing the warmth and light within it. An ideal book for helping children (and adults) reconcile paradoxical feelings about the dark.

Lisa gets lost in her memories when she finds her old kite. She thinks back on the day her grandma bought it for her when she was little. She remembers the curious little boy who she met at the beach. She marvels at how they spent the whole day together without even knowing one another!

Éditions Hatier is a French publishing house specializing in school books. Beyond its schoolbook activity collections, the Hatier Jeunesse department offers a catalogue for ages 0 to 8 that features initiation books, picture books, and fiction. Its editorial philosophy has three axes: learning in conjunction with the house's mindset; diversity to reach children's centers of interest and spark their curiosity; and accessibility, both in terms of the design and the price range. Books to help children dream, grow, and open up to the world around them!

When the greatest genius of all time goes missing, his 9-year-old daughter Anna – a budding genius herself – sets out to find him.

Since her father disappeared, Anna lives alone with her overprotective mother, who bans books, friends, and the outside world. Determined to escape, Anna climbs a vine in the family greenhouse, 4 cm a day. Along the way, she befriends Marionnette and meets Bob and Lucie, an endearing bookseller duo. Their journey leads to the bizarre hole factory of Mr. Flanagan. To rescue her father and understand this strange world, Anna will need courage, cleverness, and perhaps a magical scientific theory.

Il aurait disparu, selon certaines sources, dans des circonstances mystérieuses. Pour certains, il aurait été avalé par un serpent grand comme un bras de mer. Pour d'autres, il aurait été découpé en trois cent petits morceaux et dévoré par une tribu de découpeurs en petits morceaux. Pour d'autres encore, il aurait été réduit en purée par des fousinés et dévoré au cours d'une fête des fousinés appelée « la Fête de la purée ».

Ce qui est certain, c'est qu'il a été dévoré. Ou qu'il s'est évaporé. Ou qu'il a disparu. Ou qu'il a été aspiré, comme dans un trou noir. Pffit.

Et qu'Anna Zavatian est devenue orpheline.

Sa maman, que nous appellerons maman Zavatian, était une femme inquiète. Soucieuse. Toujours à gourmandiser Anna Zavatian. Gourmandise, ça ne veut pas dire « donner plein de gourmandises », ça veut dire « gronder ». Si si, relisez vos vieux romances de Segur, vous verrez.

Bref, Anna Zavatian se faisait gourmandiser, et à dire vrai, n'avait le droit à rien.

Et alors que pas de sortie dehors.

— La rue est trop dangereuse, disait sa maman. Il y a des voitures qui écrasent, des mecs qui harcèlent, des chiens qui mordent, des moustiques qui piquent, la rue est bien trop dangereuse. Je le vois très bien, ça pique des vioitures.

En conséquence, Anna Zavatian n'a eu droit durant sa longue enfance qu'à un territoire strictement délimité : sa chambre,

A family of bears takes shelter in an abandoned red house... until they feel the call of the great outdoors once again.

It's raining and the bear family's den is flooded. When they find a strange square, red house, the parents cautiously guide their cubs inside... It's warm and smells nice, so they decide to settle in. Little by little, they explore their surroundings. The lamp becomes a tree branch to climb, the broom a scratching post, the furniture imaginary rocks... But after a few days, they grow tired of this comfortable shelter. It's stopped raining. And the great outdoors is calling... It's time to leave.

Il s'approche un peu. Puis un peu plus encore. L'eau continue de monter.

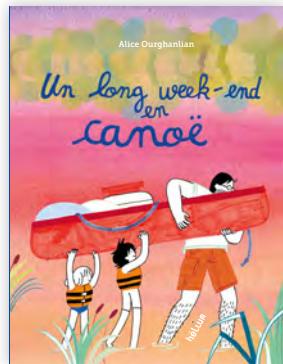

Elle ne trouvent pas une où se blottir. Ils devront s'aventurer encore plus loin. Justement, la forme semble vide. Ils décident d'y entrer à pas de velours.

New adventures that blend optimism, friendship, solidarity, and humor.

Squirrel is the best of friends, except for her habit of hiding small objects and forgetting where! Every autumn, she turns her forgetfulness into a fun treasure hunt for her friends. This year, teams must bury 20 nuts in secret spots chosen by Squirrel. But Fieldmouse's clues seem... different: flowers, chocolates, a hat, and even a love note! Love can be tricky to see, but luckily, Mole is there to help his friend find the way.

— Ooh, pardon, l'étrat. J'aurais escamoté ta clef de 12? C'est possible. Je ne me souviens pas. Comme tu le vois, hélas, elle n'est nulle part dans la maison. Pas même dans le panier des choses à enterrer au frais.
— En revanche, j'y vois mon sifflet rouge, glisse Musaraigne. Cela t'ennuie si je le récupère?
Il me sera utile pour le match de dimanche.
— Ton sifflet? Je pensais te le mettre à l'abri pour l'hiver, s'empourpre Écureuil. Mais si tu en as besoin, reprends-le, Musaraigne.
— Impec, ma fille ! Tu l'enterras plus tard, répond galement Musaraigne. Quel zozo parmi nous possède un bidule pareil?

A flip-over book, with the same story told from two different points of view: that of a tit and a woodpecker.

They were born in distant places, and yet they live in much the same way... in their own fashion. Their days follow the same rhythm – the nest, meals, friends – but each experiences them differently. One day, when a storm hits his tree, the woodpecker is forced to leave home. He finds shelter in a new tree, on a new branch – where the tit lives. The story unfolds in a mirror structure: each stage of their encounter is told by both birds in turn.

Did you know that we spend a third of our lives sleeping?!

Do we all sleep in the same way? At the same time? A book to surprise us, help us observe, and inspire us to question the world around us.

Aux origines

Pour se sentir en sécurité, nos plus lointains ancêtres dormaient dans les arbres, à l'entrée des grottes, dehors autour du feu, avant de se mettre à construire de petites cabanes. Bâtis les uns contre les autres, ils s'emmoufflaient peut-être dans des peaux de bêtes. Des scientifiques pensent même que les premiers êtres humains hibernaient. Ils auraient passé les longs hivers grâce à dormir pratiquement en permanence. C'était il y a plus de 400 000 ans ! La plus ancienne couche date, elle, de 70 000 ans. Elle a été découverte dans une grotte d'Afrique du Sud. Ce lit tout simple était en fait un trou étroit, rempli d'herbes et de roseaux. Des feuilles odorantes repoussaient les moustiques et autres petites bêtes.

Dedicated to creativity since 2013, Marcel et Joachim designs books for children aged 0-6. Great care is given to production: special formats and Pantone colors are the norm for this catalogue, which aims to the widest possible audience, with no compromises in content or form. The publishing house was delighted to join Gallimard Jeunesse on January 1st, 2025, with the ambition of continuing to develop its joyful and unique editorial line.

To celebrate the 10th anniversary of Ingela P. Arrhenius's beloved Animals, here is a large-format edition bringing together all 64 animals from the two original titles. Each spread features a different animal, from the farmyard to creatures in the wild. The gorgeous yet accessible images and design make this a great book to enjoy and share with the whole family.

Through works that are committed and demanding, yet accessible, with original designs, La Martinière aims to help children and teenagers discover the world. Seuil has always put creativity at the core of its innovative editorial line, with an artistically-minded catalogue that shakes up the shopworn conventions of children's literature. Delachaux continues to forge ahead, sharing knowledge and fostering ecological awareness. Little Urban is an imprint specializing in children's literature – and the picture book genre in particular – that prioritizes both artistic and literary excellence.

In this world so full of all sorts of things, would you like a little bit of nothing at all?

In this new album by Marie Dorléans, we discover a world much like our own, in which humans are particularly fond of accumulation: from household appliances to airplanes and slides, there is not much room left to breathe. Fortunately, a slightly eccentric scientist decides to invent a machine that can make nothing. A slow change unfolds in the city, to the delight of young and old alike, who enjoy watching, playing, and laughing. This book is a joyful call for a bit more calm in our busy lives.

"Flyweight" is the minimum weight for boxing matches.

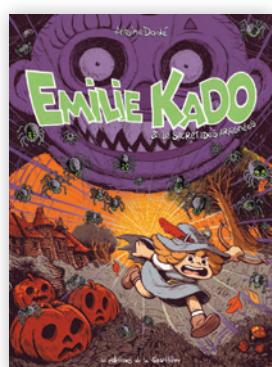

Until she was 11, Colette lived in the shadow of her twin sister Lison, the more beautiful and gifted one. Then Lison died in a car accident. Their mother was driving and lost an arm – and her favorite child. Colette stubbornly pursues ballet, in which Lison excelled, drawing sharp comments from her shadow... because since her sister's death, her shadow has been talking to her, and doesn't mince words. While Colette is timid and wary, her shadow pushes her to take risks and fulfill her dreams.

A sun-drenched yet dramatic comedy set in Florida's mafia underworld.

Delia is the daughter of Florida's most feared mafia boss. She could have led a happy life, if not for the terrible curse she's carried since birth: anyone who touches her skin dies instantly. To protect others, Delia never goes out without her gloves... and keeps people at bay with a mean right hook. Trapped in solitude, she interacts – from a distance – with her neighbor Ethan, communicating only through their windows. Until the day Delia accidentally kills a man who shows up at her door.

A book to read quickly, or a book to savor slowly...

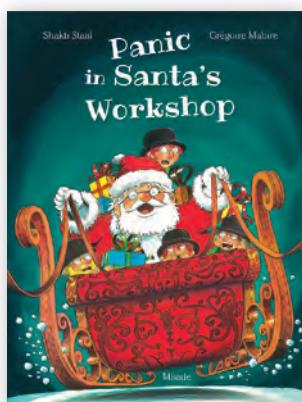

"Will you read me this book?" "Yes, but quickly then." And the story unfolds in the blink of an eye, without seeing any of the images. But it's a waste of time to not take time. To understand everything, you must start over from the beginning. Slowly, calmly. Taking the time to see everything, look at everything, savor everything. Realizing that happiness is at the heart of the storyline, at the center of the narrative, to read and reread. And when the story is finished, simply start over.

A touching coming-of-age novel that questions our relationship with domestic and wild animals, both individually and as a society.

After several animal-borne pandemics, governments have taken radical measures: all animals, including pets and livestock, are moved to remote "wild enclosures." But Jarod can't forget his dog Sirius, whom he had to abandon despite their strong bond. Along with the fearless Nora, Jarod decides to enter an enclosure illegally to find him. Despite police surveillance and facing very real dangers, the two teenagers are about to embark on a unique experience that will leave them forever changed.

A picture book about ecology and the preservation of nature in cities!

A wild plot of land with a crumbling house sits between Daphne's and Basile's buildings. When the house is demolished, rumors spread that a huge office building will replace it. What will happen to the 100-year-old oak, squirrels, and wild berries thriving there? Across generations, and each in their own way, the neighbors join forces to defend the land. As the seasons pass, the residents grow increasingly attached to this wild patch. Will they manage to save their pocket of nature for good?

Founded in 2021, La Partie publishes illustrated books for all ages. Our catalogue includes board books, picture books, and non-fiction titles. Firm believers in the virtues of wonder and precision, we aim to publish texts and images that challenge readers, encourage them to dream, and further their emancipation. Among the first authors and illustrators we published are Beatrice Alemagna, Blexbolex, Cécile Boyer, Bastien Connaire, Adrien Parlange, Anne-Margot Ramstein, and Matthias Arégui. Unleashing their imaginations, they experiment, play, and tell stories we can't wait to share with you!

What does a whole year mean when you're very young?

This book is framed by two birthday cakes: the first has three candles, and the second has four. Between the two, a window forms the fixed lens for life passing by inside and outside, revealing how the seasons affect nature and a child's life. The changing scenery encourages readers to observe the transformations of nature over time in their own environment. Shared with an adult, this large-format picture book is also a great opportunity to discover words and invent stories.

A walk through the seasons, full of play and movement.

In this wordbook, a child experiences the four seasons, with all senses on high alert. Jumping, falling, blowing, gathering, building: each season is associated with eight verbs that relate to the child and her surroundings. The woodpecker and the sun strike hard, gusts of wind blow, lightning flashes in the summer, night falls in the winter... An invitation to go outside, look around, touch, and feel, capturing the grace of childhood in a lively way.

The adventures of a little boy captured by a crew of pirates led by the dreadful Captain Brett, a mysterious character with a skull for a face...

A boy is sent by his parents to spend the summer with his uncle. Left to his own devices in an unfamiliar town, he explores the streets, discovers a large river, gets trapped in an ambush, and is taken prisoner by pirates! Against his will, he becomes part of this criminal crew... Full of action and plot twists, this story also raises questions of good and evil. World-acclaimed author Blexbolex once again ventures into new artistic and narrative territory with this genre book.

rouergue

The story of Rouergue Jeunesse began in 1993 with Jojo la mache [Jojo the Cow] a small, square picture book written and illustrated by Olivier Douzou. It paved the way for countless other talented authors and creators. In 1998, our catalogue expanded to include YA novels. Our Doado imprint has an uncompromising reputation for excellence in writing. Over the years, we've launched several imprints for early readers with fun, colorful, tactile names: Zig Zag, Tic Tac, Boomerang, Dacodac. From the very beginning, we have sought to cultivate curiosity, enthusiasm, and creativity.

When a child has trouble closing their eyes, tell them about the sleeping sky, draw them one last picture, and talk to them about the passing of time.

A mother tucks in her child, who has just woken up. In the sleeping sky, she shows them the stars forming a bear, a fairy, a tiger, a star, and even a boat. She tells them about the inescapable passage of time. Until dawn arrives, when the child finally falls asleep again, tenderly nestled in the warmth of her arms... Sophie Grenaud's beautifully rhythmic, poetic, and sensitive text blends with Anouck Boisrobert's minimalist, dreamlike illustrations, created in gouache, cut-outs, and collage.

CROQUE-CHAUSSETTE

Notre grand-mère nous le répétait souvent : « Avant d'aller chez le docteur, vérifiez s'il n'y a pas un trou dans vos chaussettes, avec le Croque-Chaussette, on ne suit jamais ! »

En cherchant dans vos tiroirs, vous avez déjà retrouvé une chaussette trouée, n'est-ce pas ? Comme si quelqu'un l'avait grignotée à l'endroit du gros orteil.

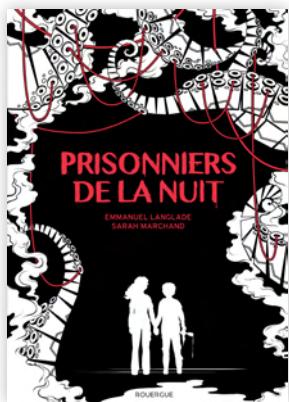

C'est certainement l'œuvre du Croque-Chaussette, un esprit très répandu qui agace beaucoup du monde (à part dans les pays où on ne met pas de chaussettes, bien sûr).

Le Croque-Chaussette, comme son nom l'indique, se nourrit exclusivement de chaussettes. Le plus souvent,

A richly illustrated graphic novel that unfolds its stark black-and-white atmosphere in a dystopian, hypnotic world.

Her name is Wreck Bam-Bam, and her brother is Good-for-Nothing. Like all the other children their age, their parents obeyed the gray screens and abandoned them. Like all the other children their age, they boarded a bus headed toward an unknown destination, across a ravaged country. But unlike all the other children their age, Wreck Bam-Bam and Good-for-Nothing don't like to blindly obey, don't completely trust adults, and carry within them two small seeds: revolt and hope.

1. ça a commencé comme ça...

Ce pays a souvent changé de nom. Les hommes et les femmes habitent dans de grandes villes, et, quand ils quittent ces villes, la terre est souvent brûlée, les mers semblent faire danser moins de vagues que les yeux ne peuvent en voir. Un jour, le pays a été envahi, les habitants maltraités. Il y a eu ensuite une guerre très longue, et beaucoup de gens ont perdu leur maison. D'autres ont perdu la raison. Et puis, sans que l'on comprenne vraiment pourquoi, la guerre est repartie. Le pays fumait au milieu des cendres et des villages détruits. Plus rien ne poussait dans les champs, et une immense tristesse empoisonnait l'air. La plupart des gens ne sont pas revenus.

A special edition of Éluard's famous poem, circulated clandestinely as early as 1942 and now a landmark of world literature.

Fifteen artists from around the world illustrate this incredibly powerful poem. Though it was born as an act of Resistance against Nazism, its breath of freedom speaks above all to our emotions, our human dignity, and love. These are values many of us long to share with children, whether at school or at home. At the end of the book, historical and visual materials recount the incredible story of this poem, which was dropped by parachute during World War II.

A beautiful duo that gently explores with your child the emotions felt before their birth.

A simple text that evokes motherhood and the long months a baby spends in their mother's belly, slowly beginning to catch the sounds of the house, the music from the street, to drum with their feet, to start thinking in their own way... and to feel all the love awaiting them in "the roundness of the world." Marie Poirier's gentle images beautifully cradle Carl Norac's tender words. Young children and their parents will love reading this book again and again...

Jewish and Arab tales that speak of brotherhood and peace.

This book brings together two cultures long accustomed to turning their backs on each other, with stories from both communities. By turns solemn or mischievous, they introduce readers to these two rich traditions, through mythical figures such as Elijah or the playful Joha, and powerful moments like the destruction of Sodom and Gomorrah, without avoiding the prejudices that have circulated for ages. At times, through the magic of storytelling, these oppositions fade away in a burst of laughter.

This Cherokee tale speaks powerfully about the choices we make, individually and collectively, between welcoming others and giving in to aggression.

This Native American legend tells of the Black Wolf (violence) and the White Wolf (kindness) that coexist within us, which Patrick Fischmann uses to reflect how humans treat the planet. One path is war: the hero's village, and that of his grandson, has just been devastated... The other path is that of the White Wolf, symbolizing harmony with animals, the river, and all that sustains life. The young boy must choose his path... Aurélia Fronty brings these symbols to life with folk-art-inspired images.

The Goodnight Kiss

Le baiser du soir

Clémentine BEAUVAIS,
Camille ROMANETTO

An incredibly poetic and moving picture book about waiting for the goodnight kiss.

"I wish Mummy was here with me to give me my goodnight kiss..." All children eagerly wait for their goodnight kiss – a moment that's both full of wonder and a little heartbreaking because once the kiss comes, the day is over. Inspired by Proust's In Search of Lost Time in which he expresses his attachment to his mother as he awaits her kiss before going to sleep, Clementine Beauvais turns a common bedtime ritual into an unforgettable poignant experience.

A tender and joyful story about a boy's dream of having a dog... which finally comes true.

A young boy dreams of having a dog, but his parents seem to have forgotten their promise and he doesn't dare remind them of it. In this picture book, we follow the emotional journey of a young boy between hope, doubt, and anticipation. The author masterfully portrays the universal experience of waiting and the friendships that leave a lasting mark on our lives.

- Alors, alors, tu promets ?
- Oui, mais...
- Quand ça ?
- Demain ?
- Hm... c'est comme promis.
- Ça c'est ça.

Dive into the suitcases of 17 fairy-tale characters in this original play-book that turns the child into a detective.

Every year, the fairy-tale characters go on vacation together, but this time, their suitcases have gotten all mixed up! In one suitcase: a cake, a little pot of butter, a basket... Over there: a spindle, an alarm clock, a nightgown... And in another: candies, lollipops, gingerbread... It's up to the reader to match each suitcase to its owner. An inventive book that invites children to discover (or rediscover) 17 tales, brought to life by Emilie Chazerand's humor and Emmanuelle Houdart's illustrations.

A story where the magic of nature and the tenderness of childhood come together, with illustrations that beautifully capture a twilight atmosphere.

The story begins with a disaster: Dorémus has lost his beloved bunny plushy along the path. Grandpa takes charge, and everyone sets off to find it before nightfall! With his older sister and brother, Dorémus sees some rabbits hopping happily behind a bush. And then something incredible happens: his plushy, which seems to be riding one of the real rabbits, leaps toward Dorémus, who catches it! Spellbound, the three children watch as the rabbits continue their graceful dance in the moonlight.

Eat or Be Eaten

À croquer
Anne-Fleur MULTON

A novel in free verse, tinged with the fantastic, that tackles the contradictory expectations placed on (young) women.

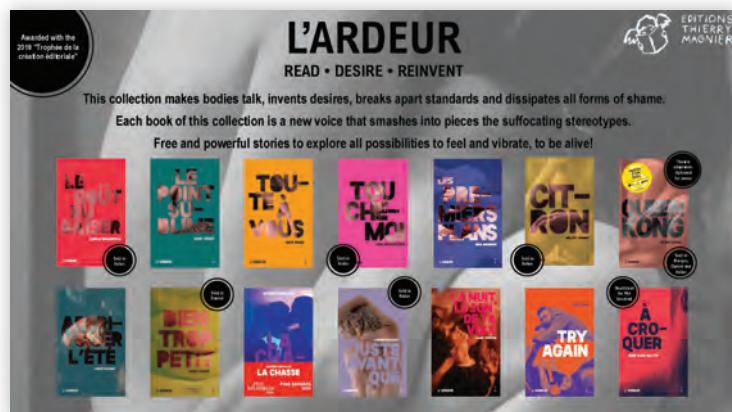

16-year-old Marie-Maud has decided she wants to stand out, to be loved. Her transformation (in both style and attitude) is radical, and she quickly attracts the boys' attention. But the more Marie-Maud tries to meet their expectations, the more she seems to lose herself, becoming the target of insults and mockery. One day, one of her fingernails disappears. The next, it's an eyebrow. And what if, in high school as in the jungle, you have to eat before you're eaten?

La Grande Ourse / The Big Bear 2025/2026: Benoît Jacques, a free-spirited and inventive creator

For more than thirty years, Benoît Jacques has explored the world of books with humor and a playful sense of irony, blending writing, illustration, and publishing. Curious and ingenious, he plays with languages and forms to share his passion and enthusiasm.

As a child, under the pseudonym Jojo La Plume, he created his first journal, Le Début, and founded his own publishing house, Les Éditions Bibi. This taste for total creation - writing, drawing, making - has never left him.

He has been honored with the Grande Ourse Prize in recognition of his entire creative career, deeply rooted in humanist values.

Some titles from Benoit Jacques Books : Titi nou-nours et la soupe au pilipili (2002) ; La Nuit du visiteur (2008, Baobab de l'album) ; Vivre (2011) ; La Légende de Pioung Fou (Livres 1, 2, 3, de 2012 à 2017) ; Poppeup (2019), La lettre d'Égypte (2023).
